Reasons Why the Excess Profits Tax F. C. MOON Should Be Abolished at Once.

By J. H. TREGO, Sec'y-Treas. Nat'l Ass'n of Credit Men.

There are many reasons why the so-called excess profits tax should be abolished. One of the principal ones is the inequalities that are so evident. Under the present system of taxing the earnings of corporate investment, there has been no relation between the tax assessed against the income of the corporation (which income is the property of the stockholders) and the income and ability to pay of the individual stockholder, to whom in reality the income belongs and against whose income the tax is in reality assessed Therefore, the percentage of tax paid by the corpora tion has in effect been a flat rate tax on the income of all stockholders, both large and small (regardless of whether they may have a total income exceeding their exemption or not), and has not in any sense been assessed with regard to the individual's income and ability to pay. This means that the small stockholder has paid indirectly the same per cent of tax with respect to his income from corporate investment as the large stockholder

Many people do not realize that a corporation is really just a group of everyday, plain, honest American citizens, acting as a single person under a corporate name. There are thousands of cases where the stockholders have only small incomes, of a size that does not make them liable for any income tax. Congress instituted the present excess profits tax on corporations for the purpose of having it paid by people of wealth and

That capital must have its reward if it accepts a hazard and that the ospect of reward must be greater than if there were no hazard, is generaltablespoonfuls of butter acknowledged. Most of our great inventions never would have been developed if they had been dependent for capital on an 8 per cent return with no compensation promised for the losses and only a half interest in the profits over the 8 per cent.

The United States has grown to be what it is today because its citizens were courageous and were willing to back new enterprises and enter new fields, to put their capital at building or developing something new and untried in the hope of extra returns. If these returns are to be denied them, they are not likely to venture in these hazardous enterprises and th country as a whole will lose because of this lack of development. If American ingenuity is to be encouraged, if new fields of endeavor are to be sought, if the United States is to progress, the people who take

The time has arrived for our lawmakers at Washington to eliminat the excess profits tax and the corporation income tax. I believe that congress should take such action which will result in every individual paying his share of government expenses in proportion to his total personal income and ability to pay; thus doing away with the inequalities now

United States Commerce Has Greater Need for Waterways Than Ever.

By BRIG. GEN. F. T. HINES, Transportation Division, War Dep't.

Commerce has a greater, more urgent need for waterways today than ver before. The present rail situation is sufficient evidence of this. The railroad today views the waterway not as an undesirable competitor, but as a very necessary ally in the solution of the enormous national transportation problems which we are now facing.

The demands which the railroads are being called upon to meet are matoes, one-fourth of a cupful of grat- greatly in excess of their combined facilities. There is an existing unsupplied demand for 800,000 freight cars alone. Railroad men have admitted that every locomotive plant in the country would have to work add the mixture, and when well heat- at capacity for three years to enable the railroads to even catch up with ed three well-beaten eggs. Cook un- the actual demands now made upon them.

It will thus be seen that the railroads are physically unable to meet the transportation demands of this new era. Of this work the waterway must perform an important share. And in assisting waterways to assume considerable portion of the transportation burdens of commerce, the war department, which has control over government inland waterways transportation, desires to become a material factor. The operation of the several barge services already initiated is but a single, although vital, phase

> Manufacturers Are Ready for an Era of "Standardized Dress" for Women.

By HELEN LOUISE JOHNSON, Editor General Federation Magazine.

I made an investigation of the matter from the producers' standpoint as well as from the consumers'. I visited the houses of ready-to-wear clothes makers. In the case of big concerns I found that the manufacturers were ready for an era of "standardized dress."

The big firms showed me that there was great loss to them in the vagaries and variations of style
